He May Go Back After Dismissal

Gulf Islands school trustees have left the door open for reinstatement of a Grade 11 student who had been dismissed for the third time, for failure to observe school regulations.

The Board recently decided that reinstatement would follow application and satisfactory assurance of a change of attitude on the part of the student, and "a new determination to work within the school rules."

The decision followed correspondence received from the boy's father, in which he claimed his son had been unfairly treated and demanded that the boy be reinstated.

Parking Area Being Prepared

—For Terminal

Construction crews are now preparing taxiways and parking areas for aircraft on the south side of Patricia Bay Airport in front of the site of the terminal building to be constructed by the federal government.

Heavy earth-moving equipment is now engaged in the levelling of the area in front of the terminal site under the direction of resident engineer Ed Warrick.

Heavy Flow Of Traffic On Friday

Late evening Swartz Bay ferry traffic was unusually heavy last Friday and the highway between Wain Road and the terminal was for some time jammed with a solid line of outward bound vehicles, reports Sidney Detachment, R.C.M.P.

Adding to the congestion were a number of large floats on route to the P.N.E. Vancouver parade last Saturday. The authorities eased the situation by putting on an additional sailing for Tsawwassen at 11 p.m.

Pat Bay For Short

Patricia Bay Highway has been abbreviated outside the telephone directory. New sign at the intersection with Beacon Ave. is as brief as it can be. The name of the route appears as "Pat Bay Hwy."

HIGHSPOTS OF TEXAS

Local Cadet Meets United States President On Tour

High pressure tour of Texas with a visit to various lavish homes as well as visits to other American cities culminated in a meeting with President J. F. Kennedy when a young member of The Review staff was a guest of that nation recently.

He is Bill Chatterton, who is also senior cadet of 676 Squadron. For a month he has flown south of the border, living it up. Down to earth again, he has written of his visit and its highlights. The story of a once-in-a-lifetime holiday will appear in the next several issues of The Review.

By BILL CHATTERTON

THE best way to describe a trip like the one I have just returned from is to start at the beginning and record in a fairly chronological order the places visited, my impressions of these places, and finally general impressions of the entire tour. But before I go into details of the tour itself, I will explain now I ever got to make it. It all started just before Christmas of last year. This is the time of year when all air cadet squadrons across Canada have to start choosing candidates whom they wish to recommend for special courses during the coming summer months. One position which had to be filled is for the International Air Cadet Exchange program. I was picked by my squadron, 676, Sidney, to try for this honor.

The god of luck, whoever he may be, was on my side, and I was chosen as the only cadet from B.C. to travel to the United States. Four other cadets from the mainland were chosen to go to European countries. This selection was made in the spring of 1962.

COMMENCEMENT
The Air Cadet Exchange program started in 1947. In that year Canada and the United Kingdom exchanged 46 cadets. This has grown to the point where this year Canada swapped cadets with 11 countries throughout the free world.

There were 15 cadets from Canada visiting the United States this year, a drop of 10 from 1961. The 15 of us assembled at R.C.A.F. Station Trenton, Ont. on July 16 to be fitted with summer uniforms and briefed on the trip.

We had a lot of time to kill at Trenton, so one afternoon we were taken to visit Old Fort Henry at ... Continued on Page Nine Canadian methods were explained to Jamaican 4-H Club members, Eulah Witter and Clement E. Morrison, by Judy Chilcott of the Saanich Jersey 4-H Club at the Pacific National Exhibition.

Eulah and Clement are visiting the P.N.E. 4-H Club show in celebration of Jamaica's independence. The P.N.E. runs to Labor Day, Sept. 3, and is being attended by many residents of this area.

TECHNICAL SCHOOL IS OUT FOR SAANICH TRUSTEES LEARN FROM DEPARTMENT

Saanich School District is too small to permit of the establishment of a technical school.

Trustees were informed by the department of education on Monday evening that such a facility should not be offered unless the district has more than 1,000 students attending senior high school in the area.

The information followed an earlier discussion of such provisions here.

Such a school must offer more than one course, trustees were told.

Department of education suggested the provision of a vocational wing at a local high school.

"It means we are going to deny the education these youngsters require," snapped Capt. J. F. Rowton.

"We haven't denied it yet," cautioned the chairman, Reginald Sinkinson. There is no one specific course which could be offered to cover all aspects of technical training, observed Mrs. J. N. Thomas. Capt. Rowton took her up on the statement.

GENERAL SUBJECT
"Most definitely there is," he replied. "Mathematics, for example, is general in all the trades."

The system visualized by the department is an advance on the apprenticeship system, suggested

School Trustee Mooted For Sidney As New Seat Debated

—Vacancy Goes To Saanich

Proposed rearrangement of trustees in Saanich School District will see representation in direct proportion to population. At the same time, Sidney will be invited to take a stand on district representation.

In previous years the board of trustees has been made up of three rural representatives and four municipally-elected trustees. With the withdrawal of James Island from the school district a vacant seat exists.

The trustees of the district decided several weeks ago to fill the vacancy with a third representative from Saanich municipality, where the greatest population lies.

On Monday evening the board learned from the department of education that the proposal was acceptable in view of the population distribution, but only subject to an established representation in North Saanich. At the present time, noted the department, two trustees are from the rural area and none from the village of Sidney. The department requires the representation of the northern end to be on a firm basis.

If the village of Sidney and the rural areas of North Saanich can agree to name their trustees jointly as has been the case in the past, then the new project will be approved by the department. At the present time the village of Sidney elects no trustee specifically on behalf of its ratepayers. Trustees Lewis Harvey and Capt. John Rowton represent the two

Extension May Be Ready Next Month

The extension to runway 08-26 at Patricia Bay Airport may be ready for use at the end of September, depending on the weather.

Resident engineer Ed Warrick said Tuesday that recent rain in the area has considerably slowed the large project as the heavy machinery bogs down in the mud.

Before paving takes place some 30,000 additional tons of gravel will be hauled to the extension site. Almost 8,000 tons have already been trucked from gravel pits on the Saanich Peninsula.

The completion of the extension could be delayed into the middle of October, but if the present dry weather holds Mr. Warrick feels it could be ready by the middle of September.

ON GULF ISLANDS

Ratepayers To Be Fully In Picture Before Referendum

Trustees of Gulf Islands School District, under the chairmanship of G. S. Humphreys, have decided to mail a pamphlet, containing information regarding the gymnasium-auditorium and science room proposed for Ganges school, to all eligible voters prior to the referendum date, October 5.

The referendum will also be discussed at a series of public meetings to be held on the islands during the last week of September.

George Heinekey, buildings and grounds chairman, reported excellent progress on the building of the new school board office and health unit, with the work ahead of schedule. Completion date has been set for September 15.

The board voted to make application to the department of education for permission to use $3,000 from capital funds for furnishings, landscaping and general finishing for the new building.

MAINTENANCE
Annual maintenance and repair work carried out during the summer on district schools is almost completed, reported Mr. Heinekey.

Mrs. H. Barner expressed satisfaction with the newly-erected activities room at Galiano school.

Dr. J. L. Jansch, personnel chairman, reported all teaching positions have been filled.

A. D. Dane, reporting on transportation, said the yearly overhaul of school buses has been completed and all vehicles are in good shape.

Trustees decided to discontinue payment of $10 monthly for the cleaning of blackboards. Payment was originally made to give financial assistance to needy students. Trustees now consider the system unsatisfactory.

Next meeting of the school board will be held in Ganges September 11.

CONTROL TOWER AND BUILDING

Two Projects For Patricia Bay Airport Are Sought By Tender

Tenders have been invited for both a main administration building and a new control tower at Patricia Bay airport. Cost of both structures is estimated at $700,000 by the architects, Wade, Stockill and Armour.

The tower will be erected on the roadway between the present Flying Club building and the P.C.A. building. Of unique construction, it will rise 60 feet above the ground. It will be built of concrete, and is estimated to cost about $80,000.

The main administration building, on the site of the former Patricia Bay School, will be about 200 feet long and contain different wings. It will be of two storeys, with some offices on the second floor. The structure will be of steel frame construction. Architects estimate that approximately one year would be required to complete the building.

Highway Ready For Holiday?

The remaining portion of the Patricia Bay Highway diversion may be opened to traffic for the Labor Day weekend, although the project will not be completed at that time. Recent rain brought the road construction job to an abrupt halt for a number of days.

If the rain holds off, the laying of gravel on the remaining several hundred feet should be completed by this Saturday. After packing the road will receive its first layer of asphalt in time for the holiday weekend. Following the holiday, this southern portion of the diversion will be again closed to traffic while the final coat of asphalt is laid.

The numerous delays in the project were exemplified by one workman who said, "I came to work on the job last April. It was supposed to last for a month or six weeks, and I'm still here!"

COURT OF REVISION

They Complain But They Take No Action—Rowton

Ratepayers of Saanich School District consistently complain that their names are omitted from the voters' lists, but they do nothing about it.

This charge was made by Capt. John Rowton on Monday evening when the Saanich School District board of trustees was discussing the date of the court of revision.

"For years we have sat on a court of revision and we have had only one customer in all that time," said the trustee,

"and that was a tenant-elect."

The school board named Chairman Reginald Sinkinson with Trustees Lewis Harvey and Capt. Rowton to the court of revision. Trustee Culbert Brown was named as an alternate.

Deciding that the court of revision was a formal waste of time, trustees will also attend a regular board meeting on the same evening.

REWARD FOR CONVICTION

An outbreak of wilful damage to signs is reported in Central Saanich.

Frank Edgell, proprietor of a trout farm at Blunk Bonde Farm on East Saanich Road, reports that signs showing directions to his place have been removed by miscreants. When the missing signs are replaced, they are just as promptly stolen.

A large sign in the vicinity of the farm was defaced during the weekend. Mr. Edgell is offering a cash reward for information leading to the conviction of those responsible.

SELECTION IS EXPLAINED

Athlone Fellowship For Young Sidney Graduate In Engineering

Forty-one young Canadian engineers will again be selected this fall for two years' training in industrial establishments or universities in Britain under the Athlone Fellowships Scheme.

Robert Hemmings, son of Dr. and Mrs. C. H. Hemmings of Sidney, who graduated in engineering from University of Alberta this year, will be leaving shortly for Great Britain for two years post-graduate study under an Athlone Fellowship.

Selection boards for the awards will be at 17 Canadian universities which grant degrees in engineering. These boards will be meeting in October, November and December.

Travelling across Canada to represent Britain on the boards will be F. E. A. Manning, C.B.E., M.C., T.C., B.Sc. (Eng), M.I. Mech. E., M.I.E.E., adviser to the managing committee of the Athlone Fellowship Scheme, and M. H. G. Rogers, First Secretary, British High Commission in Canada. The British Trade Commissioner in the area concerned also sits or is represented on the boards.

420 AWARDS

The scheme began in 1951 and so far there have been some 420 awards. Of the total 41 Fellows to be selected for the course starting in the fall of 1963, 31 will be students graduating in engineering in May or June 1963 (Group A Awards) and ten will be engineers who have already been employed in industry (Group B Awards).

Fellows go to Britain for two years to follow programs of advanced work or research in universities or industry, but the Boards are prepared to consider applications for a limited number of Group B Fellowships of one year's duration only. The awards, financed by the British government, cover travel costs, living expenses and any academic fees involved. They are granted on the understanding that their holders will afterwards return to Canada to follow their careers.

The Athlone Fellowship Committee in Britain — representative of industry, the universities and the government — arranges for the reception and placing of the Fellows and is concerned with their welfare and progress throughout their stay in the country.

The names of successful candidates will be announced in January 1963. Closing date for applications will be October 15, 1962.

ELIGIBILITY

1. The candidate must be a Canadian citizen or a British subject normally resident in Canada and, in the case of a Group A applicant, hold or be about to obtain a degree awarded by one of the Canadian universities, on the successful completion of a course of study in any branch of engineering. A degree is not an indispensable requirement for Group B applicants possessing alternative qualifications.

2. The candidate should not normally have passed his 27th birthday by October 1 in the year the Fellowship is taken up. Selection Boards, are, however, prepared to consider applications for a limited number of Group B Fellowships of one year's duration only.

APPLICATIONS

Application forms may be had from the registrars of the universities concerned. Candidates should complete and submit these in triplicate, together with a recent photograph, to the registrar of the university of which they are or will become graduates. A Group B candidate who is not a university graduate should apply to the university nearest to his home. References are taken up by registrars, on receipt of completed application forms.

Visitors from Spokane, Wash., who spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. K. Scott of West Saanich Rd. were Mr. Scott's father, brother and family. Miss Wendy Scott recently left to stay in Spokane with her cousins.

SAANICHTON

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Boyd, with sons Ross and Drew, Rudolph Road, returned home from a week's holiday up-Island. They were fortunate to have five nice days' camping at Parksville and they visited relatives at Campbell River.

Miss Wendy Bate, Central Saanich Road, visited with her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. G. Cruickshank, and family in Vancouver for 10 days.

Mr. and Mrs. I. Pelter, with Elaine and Barry, Mount Newton Cross Road, left on Sunday for Smithers, B.C., where they will visit with a brother and sister-in-law of Mr. Pelter's, and hope to get in some fishing and sight-seeing in northern B.C. in the next two weeks. During their absence Mr. Lockner is in residence at their home.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Hodgkin, with those proposing the colleges go into more detail than that.

"There isn't any doubt that geographical distances, and cost of sending young people to university, will lead many parents in B.C. -- and through them, local school boards and businessmen -- to serious consideration of junior colleges. There can be no argument with this. In fact, it is one of the chief reasons for the increasing number of senior matriculation classes through the province.

"But no matter how great the present burden may be of sending students to UBC or Victoria College, no matter how much junior colleges may be desired by parents, business and industry, let's take a good solid look at the whole picture and do some sound planning," Mr. Lester said. "It's easy to scramble eggs -- but unscrambling them is something else again."

He called attention to the current vocational and technical training program in B.C., with new schools under way at Nelson, Kelowna and Prince George, expansion of existing schools at Burnaby and Nanaimo, and a vocational and technical institute under development in conjunction with UBC.

These programs need full establishment and it might be wise to put some support behind them rather than becoming excessively enthusiastic in new and unfamiliar fields.

B.C. HEADING FOR EDUCATIONAL BINGE, SAYS TRUSTEES HEAD

B.C. is heading into a new education "binge" and--unless care is taken--will suffer the inevitable hangover. The "binge" is an increasing demand for junior or community colleges; and the hangover will be multiplication of institutions and services beyond practical needs.

That is a major reason, said R. E. Lester of Haney, president of the B.C. School Trustees' Association, for one of several featured discussions at the association's annual convention at Victoria Oct. 15-17.

Dr. F. T. Giles, co-ordinator of college relations at the University of Washington, is expected to discuss the progress of community colleges in Washington and other states--the area of inspiration for many B.C. proposals.

Mr. Lester's concern was twofold: A number of communities in B.C. are seeking to establish junior colleges; little effort is being made by these groups to co-relate junior colleges with vocational and technical schools already under way.

He was also concerned with the emphasis that local interest is placing on academics, as opposed to the country's very real need for developing good craftsmen and recognizing the value of vocational and technical training.

"Oddly enough," said Mr. Lester, "much of the pressure for junior colleges is coming from groups outside the education system, and while no one would wish to put a damper on their enthusiasm, too many are attacking the problem on a limited local basis instead of looking at the whole picture."

At the present time a junior college is in operation at Nelson. Two others are under development a heel, Shirley MacLaine plays the part of an elevator girl, and comedian Jack Lemon is cast as an IBM operator for an insurance company.

Directed and partly written by Billy Wilder, "The Apartment" is a comedy, but it also contains pathos, near-tragedy, satire and a wealth of observation on life. This movie is adult entertainment only.

KINETTES TO STAGE CONTEST AT ESQUIMALT

Local cooks are invited by the Kinette Club of Sidney to exhibit their canning and baking at the Kinsmen Fall Fair, to be held Monday, Sept. 24, to Saturday, Sept. 29 at the Esquimalt Municipal Sports Centre, under the auspices of the Victoria, Vic-Van-Isle and Sidney Kinsmen Clubs.

The kitchen arts section is being managed by the Sidney Kinette and will run from Monday to Wednesday of the fair week. Three sections are being offered, food preserving, baking and cooking, and a special junior division with two age groups, 12 to 16 years and under 12 years of age.

A novelty under the food preserving section, which includes the usual canned fruits and vegetables, jams, jellies and pickles are the classes for frozen foods, peas, corn on the cob, and TV dinners. A deep freeze will be provided for these entries.

New Canadians, at those with old country background, may choose from a variety of national dishes in the baking section, Chinese new year dumplings, and Swedish or Danish pastries being three of the six classes offered.

All entries will be judged on Monday morning, Sept. 24, by well-known judges.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER FOR AUGUST BRIDE

Miss H. Nunn, Henry Ave., and Mrs. A. Nunn were co-hostesses at a miscellaneous shower given at the former's home in honor of Miss Eileen Gardner, a bride-elect of this month.

The honored guest received a corsage of pink carnations; her mother, Mrs. A. Gardner, one of many chrysanthemums and mother of the groom-to-be, Mrs. G. Cruickshank, white carnations. A basket decorated in turquoise contained the many gifts.

Invited guests were Mesdames H. Nunn, A. Nunn, B. Greig, A. Davidson, C. Levar, E. Hammond, H. Currie, W. C. Reynolds, S. Roberts, C. Pearson, M. Scott, W. Tripp, N. Nunn, R. Deyotte, C. Reimer, J. Gardner, J. Nunn, V. Nunn, Misses J. Nunn, D. Reimer and H. Nunn.

POSTERS MUST COME DOWN OR PENALTY WILL BE IMPOSED

Penalty of $100 plus costs is written into a by-law to regulate the posting and display of posters in Central Saanich given first and second readings at last Tuesday's council meeting.

Bond for that amount will be lodged with the municipality in advance, and this may be forfeited if posters displayed on the written authorization of the municipal clerk are not removed within the stipulated 60 days.

The by-law is prompted, said Municipal Clerk D. S. Wood, by the experience of the last election when "posters were plastered all over the place and not taken down."

"How about posters announcing community meetings and dances," enquired Councillor A. G. Vickers. "In that case they may deposit a cheque for $100 and get it back when they take the posters down," replied the clerk.

Referring to the past election, Councillor T. G. Michell said, "I think we should adopt the policy of Saanich and not allow them to put them up. I don't think the by-law is stiff enough."

REPRESENTATION

THE Village of Sidney is to be invited to express an opinion on representation on the board of trustees of Saanich School District.

For many years the village and the adjacent rural area of North Saanich were one community and as such elected two trustees to the school board. With the incorporation of the village no change was made in the representation and the system continued.

When James Island village was closed this summer the trustee from the island concluded his appointment and a vacancy was left on the board. After some deliberation trustees decided that in view of the distribution of population the vacant seat should be allocated to Saanich municipality. By this means Saanich would have three trustees, Central Saanich, two and the combined village and rural area would also elect two.

Department of education has accepted the recommendation subject to a formal confirmation of the present system whereby two trustees represent the two northern areas. The village will be asked to approve the system or to seek a modification whereby one trustee will be elected from the village and one from the rural area.

On innumerable occasions the trustees have emphasized that a trustee is elected from a specific area to represent all the district and that he should not be parochial in his participation. This thinking, extended to the present situation, would suggest that no particular advantage would be gained by ratepayers of the district if trustees were elected separately from Sidney and North Saanich.

In view of the harmonious relations between the two northern areas and the common interests evident a confirmation of the present system might be advantageous. By jointly naming a trustee, the district gains a broader range of selection of candidates. Unless the department is prepared to modify the present establishment further to the extent of adding an eighth trustee to be elected from Sidney, then a joint representation would probably better serve the ratepayers of the two areas concerned.

PLANNING

YEARS ago the slogan was coined: "The greatest good for the greatest number". It was under criticism from many quarters for many years. Although it probably represents a summary of the operation of almost every social organization, it was particularly unacceptable for its condensation into words of a rather nebulous aim.

Today, the same slogan has been abandoned, but modern society is coming ever closer to its realization. Many years ago every community developed along haphazard lines. If the owner of a property sought to use his land in such a manner as to yield a greater revenue, then he proceeded forthwith to so employ it.

Those days are gone. At the present day the use of property is closely controlled by planning ahead of time.

Planning is certainly no new entry into the social scheme. Civilizations which have perished long ago were accustomed to a planned community. In Europe, with its centuries old communities, planning has been followed and the evidences still remain.

In those areas where planning was adopted the tendency was to establish a scheme for the community or for the centre of the community and let the surrounding area develop as it might. Among the notably planned cities in Europe are parts of Paris and in England, sections of the city of Bath. Both attract thousands of tourists annually to inspect the foresight of our fathers.

In other cities the foresight of a century ago failed to anticipate the degree of development which has ensued and the cities are no better than those which developed along the more familiar haphazard lines.

The fact remains that there are more visitors travelling across the world to view the ancient grandeur of cities without a plan than come to enjoy the greater number of planned North American cities. Age and casual expansion have produced beauty. Planning has frequently borne horrors in concrete.

With everything around us developing to plan we are moved to wonder whether we are heading to beauty or function. This must rest with the planners and the architects. The common man who probably has little knowledge of the subject certainly has less option in the matter. There is a responsibility, not to ourselves, but to future generations.

One acute danger of planning is that of seeking to be all things to all communities.

The responsibility of controlling the economic destiny of individuals is a serious one. Equally serious is the onus of accuracy. A false move by today's planners represents tomorrow's burden on the community. With these considerations in mind it is startling to find that planning involves so many minor considerations that only a great intellect or a copious staff could possibly give every aspect its full share of attention.

Such matters as the size of store signs and the permissibility of access to the road are scarcely of such vital importance as to occupy the planner for great lengths, when the entire future of the community and its people is within the control of the same administrators.

The picture rather resembles a car manufacturer who bankrupts himself by spending vast sums of money for the design of an ornament on the radiator of a first-class automobile.

Can we be losing our sense of values?

Letters To The Editor

APPEAL
The Saanich Division Girl Guides and all those associated with them wish to thank all the people who attended (in spite of the rain) the Garden Party and Fashion Show at Woodwyn Farm, on Saturday, Aug. 18.

Especially we wish to thank and express our gratitude to Mrs. W. C. Woodward, who allowed us to use her home and buildings so freely. We also wish to thank

Mrs. J. S. Rivers for presenting the Fashion Show, which was greatly enjoyed by all who saw it. One of our guide laws says, "A Guide smiles and sings under all difficulties"—well, we felt our duties followed that motto very well.

The proceeds which amounted to approximately $1100, will help greatly to pay our yearly expenses for our campsite, Kingswood, at Elk Lake.

We wish to thank The Review

Seven Years As School Trustee End For Rowbottom

—More Interest Needed

"I wish more people would take an active interest in the schools in this area," said former James Island representative on the school board, A. H. Rowbottom, recently. Mr. Rowbottom served as the James Island trustee for almost seven years, from August 1955, to June of this year.

Now living on Sayward Road near Elk Lake, Mr. Rowbottom says that he really enjoyed the work he had on the school board and is sorry he is no longer able to continue in this capacity. He retired as trustee when the village on the island was closed by Canadian Industries Ltd. last June. Mr. Rowbottom lived in Sidney from 1930 to 1940. In 1937 he was first employed by C-I-L and has worked for the company ever since. In 1939 he was transferred to eastern Canada, where he stayed for seven years.

Coming back to the west coast in 1946, he and his wife, whom he met in the east, went to live in the village on James Island. Mr. Rowbottom still works for the company on the island and is presently employed as a lab technician.

CITIZENSHIP

The general quality of citizenship comes out of suitable education and good government. Our forefathers, according to Genesis, were made to adapt themselves to work in an unprepared wilderness. Countless millions have since been born to learn nothing about prayer. The first duty of a citizen is learning to govern himself and work. If he fails, that is his own punishment.

Teaching men to pray for considerable rewards was one of the early devices invented to yield commercial gains. Nowadays we have machines. "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?"—so reads the text. In the process of time, everything gained is eventually lost. Even cities have been destroyed. And all persons are subject to accident. But they have no better choice than to put their efforts into welfare proposals, originated in the minds of friends and neighbors. Mind is, of course, Providential.

PHILIP HOLLOWAY, Central Saanich, August 20, 1962.

UNIVERSAL LAW

Very little serious thought seems to have been given by the public in general or by those with authority, that the last frontier of complete lawlessness now lies in the international field only. Mankind's lack of an enforceable system of universal law is the basic reason for most of the national turmoil, futile controversy and the perpetuation of national hates.

None of the alleged aims of any of the factions involved in the major issues today could possibly be workably instituted without a world-powerful, law-enforcing agency. No one national power would be accepted because of the totalitarian potential.

An international law-enforcement agency is an indispensable condition for an enduring peace, for complete abolition of all national armies, navies and air forces, for unjust colonialism and all forms of national conflictation by virtue of power. In particular, it would render sterile the ferocious voice of the extreme rightists and all advocates of national violence. None of these can be completely controlled without such a world agency.

When the desire for national aggression is made to be hopelessly futile, and the fear of beligerent attack is removed forever—then and only then will our world have any claim to the term civilization.

A Utopian dream? It is we that make it so. Law applicable to nations is now a feasible world necessity, since 1945. Prevailing circumstances seem to indicate it may also be a decree of nature for man's survival. Usually, when Nature says, "Adapt or die," all life does one or the other. This is reality, not a dream.

Does human behaviour change? Many innovations that have occurred in the last 100 years were all regarded as "dreams" just previous to their institution and their supporters were "quack."

J. ROGER ELGOOD, 504 Lands End Rd., Sidney, B.C. August 15, 1962.

RETURN FROM REUNION IN NEWFOUNDLAND

After attending a family reunion in St. Johns, Newfoundland, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Hayward returned Tuesday to their home on Sixth St. Mr. Hayward was born in St. Johns and had not seen the brother from Florida in 42 years. There were six of a family, ranging in ages from 63 to 77 and all living. Some of the members came from Montreal, England, Florida and B.C. It was a happy three-week holiday for Mr. and Mrs. Hayward, who travelled to their destination by "Jet" and in the whole visit, experienced two days' rain. Their last visit to Newfoundland was in '49 and since that visit the country has become so much more prosperous. The new Confederation building was quite impressive and beautiful new homes were to be found almost everywhere. Mrs. Hayward, a native of Scotland, attended a Presbyterian "Kirk," and thought it the most beautiful church she had ever been in. The dome ceiling, pillars, woodwork, brasswork and carpets were lovely. The people in Newfoundland are most hospitable, so much so that it will take Mr. and Mrs. Hayward a considerable time to recover from the gay life they lived in such a short space of time.

Chatterton Seeks New Link For Airport Road Closure

George Chatterton, Esquimalt-Saanich M.P., is still pressing his government for the provision of a communication link between East Saanich Road and West Saanich Road in place of Willingdon Road.

The road was closed by the provincial government in July at the request of the Dominion government. It lies on Dominion government property and was constructed by that government.

The full length of the road is closed, but the western end is open to the public to give access to the navy squadron and to Victoria Flying Services and other installations at the west camp of Patricia Bay Airport. This section of the road is simply a road on the airport and not strictly a public highway.

CONVERSATION PIECE

Centennial Fountain Finds Favour With This Visitor

By DORIS LEEDHAM HOBBS

Have you made a special pilgrimage to the Centennial Fountain now installed, and sending forth its lovely jets of water, in the garden on the south side of the Legislative Building?

It is well worth a visit. There is something restrained and yet quite satisfying in its severe and simple design.

If you remember, the avant garde among our local sculptors deprecated the fact that the four bronze animal figures which decorate the four cardinal points of the basin, were (to me) beautifully realistic.

The two sea gulls in flight wing-to-wing above the fountain are recognizable as gulls, the sea lions on the centre rocks could not be mistaken for other than they are. The four animal sculptures of Raven, the Wolf, the Bear, and the Eagle, have been chosen as they are symbols of the chief of our native Indian bands of B.C. Jets of water curve in towards the basin from two levels and the whole can be illumined at night.

Robert Savery, the artist, is to be congratulated on something which will be a joy to 99 per cent of passers-by who are simple at heart and normal of vision!

The plaques with their historical notes add much to the interest of the visitors, who, of course, make a wish as they fling a coin into the fountain and stand as good a chance of its fulfillment as our local charities have of benefitting by their generosity.

Swimming Lessons Finish With 30 Receiving Awards

Last Wednesday afternoon saw the successful conclusion of swim classes held at the Craigville Pool under the direction of Mrs. H. Gordon of the Red Cross Water Safety Services.

Local youngsters numbering 55 enrolled for the course, and 30 of them passed required tests enabling them to be presented with "Water Safety Beginner's Certificates" and buttons.

Parents were invited to the pool to watch the accomplishments of their children and participation in a series of races. Small prizes were presented to the winner of each event.

FAREWELL PARTY UPON EVE OF DEPARTURE

In honor of Mrs. R. E. Woodhouse, who has left for her home in England, a tea was given by Mrs. S. C. Taylor and Mrs. P. Brethour at the latter's home on Patricia Bay Highway. Mrs. Woodhouse was presented with a box of recipes, an autograph book and a bouquet of flowers. She thanked the ladies and said how much she had enjoyed meeting them. Mrs. Vaughan-Mirch was also presented with a bouquet as it was her wedding anniversary.

Mrs. E. Baker was also a guest of Mrs. S. Brethour. The other ladies are all members of St. Andrews and Holy Trinity Women's Auxiliary afternoon branch. Those present were Mrs. J. Ramsay, Mrs. Pyle, Mrs. E. Mervfield, Mrs. Nanson, Mrs. J. D. Pearson, Mrs. Mann, Mrs. Pryor, Mrs. Pitcher, Mrs. Noden, Mrs. Trent, Mrs. S. W. Davis, Mrs. Sawerby, Mrs. Gilmour, Mrs. O'Brien, Mrs. Schap, Mrs. Alera, Mrs. H. W. Scandiffield, Mrs. E. John, Mrs. Jeffrey, Mrs. Beecher, Mrs. Moseley, Mrs. J. R. Hopkins and Mrs. McQuarrie.

"Unless I shall see... I will not believe,"—John 21:25. Picture the scene—Jesus disciples had seen their risen Lord, had talked with Him but Thomas had not been present. Now Thomas was with them, the disciples were telling him the wonderful news. But did he rejoice? What did he say? "Except I shall see in his hands the print of the nails and put my finger into the print of the nails I will not believe."

If the disciples had told Thomas that Pilate had been killed by robbers or that Reuben had run off with Anna the wife of the spice merchant, he would not have doubted, but since this thing was beyond his understanding he needed proof.

Do you need proof? Jesus lives and saves? Jesus is showing himself to you in changed lives—the alcoholic who has found the answer to his drinking in Christ, the repentant thief, and just the ordinary people whose changed lives attest the saving grace found in Jesus Christ, God's Son. Won't you see—and believe?

POLITICAL ISSUE

They Raise It—We Spend It! Trustees Are Quite Happy

Debate on school financing ran into a swift political argument when trustees of Saanich School District discussed alternative methods of raising school taxes on Monday evening.

The debate followed receipt of a questionnaire from the B.C. School Trustees' Association asking for opinions on the present system of financing schools and recommendations for alternative methods. Lewis Harvey expressed disapproval of the system followed in N. Thomas strongly disagreed, but Socialist Saskatchewan, Mrs. J. Chairman Reginaid Sinkinson ruled the comments out of order.

On the recommendation of the chairman each trustee was invited to complete his own questionnaire and submit it directly to the association.

"This becomes entirely political," he commented. Mr. Harvey summed up the present system of school tax collections in perfect agreement with

Back Home

Miss Claire Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Johnson, Madonna Drive, has returned home after enjoying two months' holiday with her aunt in Lachute, Que. Ken Johnson, her brother, returned to Vancouver after spending a few days with his parents.

Mrs. Thomas. "If I were a municipal councillor, I would oppose it," he told his colleagues. "As a trustee I am in favor of it. As a trustee I think it's lovely!"

"They raise it, we spend it," summarized Mrs. Thomas.

Evidence that the RCAF exercise program may reduce the risk of heart disease is recorded in a report by Dr. Lawrence A. Goulding of Kent University, Ohio.

Weather Is Kind To Annual Fete At Fulford Farm Home

With the unseasonable weather this summer, there was speculation on Wednesday as to whether to take the annual St. Mary's Garden Fete into the Fulford Hall or to stay in the garden at Roseneath. The outdoors was decided on and the sun co-operated.

"You must live right at Fulford," said Col. Desmond Crofton, who opened the fete. "It poured with rain at Ganges." The fete realized $214 during the afternoon.

Corsages were presented to Col. Crofton (for his wife), and the general convener, Mrs. F. I. Jackson, and to Miss Gladys Shaw.

FOR 40 YEARS

This annual fete has been held at the Shaw Farm for over 40 years, and everyone appreciates the hospitality of the family. Last year the fete was rained out, so every stall, worker and visitor had to be taken inside the house. Guessing the weight of a cake proved exciting and Col. Crofton won—right on the nose.

A. E. Roddis was kept busy at the gate selling tickets, and he also introduced the guest speaker.

Conveners at the stalls and helpers were the following: Mrs. Jackson, general convener; Mrs. A. Davis, Mrs. D. Slingsby, Mrs. R. Lee, Mrs. W. Y. Stewart, Mrs. V. Rathwell and Margaret, Mrs. Roddis, Mrs. A. Stevens, Mrs. G. Ruckle and Gwen, Mrs. A.D. Dane, Mrs. J. Fraser, Ronda Lee and Jayney French, and tea convener was Miss Gladys Shaw, assisted by Mrs. A. O. Lacy, Mrs. R. R. Alton, Mrs. F. Olsson, Mrs. Betty Drummond.

NOTABLE VISITOR

Rudolph Margison returned on Wednesday for the first time since he was married in the Shaw's home 54 years ago. Mr. Margison, who is in his 80's, married the lovely Louise Wilson, but his wife was not able to come up with him this time. He was accompanied by four of their grandchildren, Jean, Louise, John and Art Warren of Victoria.

Mr. Margison's sister, Mrs. A. Ruckle of Beaver Point, was there, and Mrs. G. Ruckle, Miss Gwen, Mrs. H. Ruckle and Mrs. A. Stevens were in the Beaver Point party.

Mrs. Margison is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Wilson, who originally owned the Shaw property.

Coffee Party At Service Station

Tricommali Chapter Order of the Eastern Star held their second annual coffee-and-pie party at the Shell Service showroom in Ganges last Friday morning and afternoon. Dozens of delicious home-made pies were provided by members for take-home sale, or for serving on the spot with a cup of coffee.

Guests were greeted by Mrs. J. G. Reid, Worthy Matron. Mrs. F. H. A. Reid was general convener, assisted by Mrs. A. E. Roddis, Mrs. A. W. Barber, Mrs. E. Parsons, Mrs. L. C. Lambert, Mrs. W. F. Thorburn, Mrs. A. J. McManus, Mrs. A. Manfield, Mrs. J. E. Fletcher, Mrs. C. J. Wrightson and Miss Mary Corbett.

F. H. A. Reid and C. J. Wrightson were in charge of receipts, which amounted to $80. Thanks of the Order were extended to A. McManus for use of Shell Services premises for the occasion.

THE GULF ISLANDS

FAMILY DAY AT DERBY

CALIFORNIA BOY IS TOP MAN IN ISLAND SALMON DERBY WITH 21-POUND FISH

Richard Landrith, 13-year-old visitor from Martinez, California, was the proud first prize winner in Salt Spring Island Rod and Gun Club annual Derby, held last Sunday.

Richard, guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. Russell, Long Harbour, pulled in a salmon weighing an ounce under 21 pounds, more than double the weight of the nearest contestant.

It was quite a family day at the derby. Four-year-old Bruce Patterson won the junior prize with a 6 lb. 13 oz. fish. Bruce, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Patterson of Fulford, went fishing with his father and lost a big fish. This time he was more careful. Bruce was the first boy born in the present Lady Minto Hospital.

Slender 11-year-old Linda Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Anderson, Ganges, brought in the largest cod. It tipped the scales at 18 lb. 4 oz.

LADIES' PRIZE

Ladies' prize was won by Mrs. John Poubister, former resident of Ganges, who has recently returned from two years' residence in France. Mrs. Poubister's salmon weighed 9 lbs. 2 oz.

Second prize in the general list went to Don Irwin for an 8 lb. 15 oz. fish. M. Peller, a newcomer to Salt Spring, took third prize with an 8 lb. 10 oz. catch. It was the first B.C. salmon for Mr. Peller, a keen fisherman from eastern Canada.

Clifford Wakelin, Ganges, won the $100 grand consolation prize. Mrs. Louis Lorentsen, wife of the club president, picked out the winning ticket. Other consolation prizes went to Mrs. Rose Alexander and Mrs. Ted Parker.

OTHER WINNERS

Other winners in the general derby list included: Fred Luddington, J. Poubister, D. Jenkins, Victor Jackson, Nels Degnen, Earl

Bishop And The Baby

She Drank The Holy Water

By BEA HAMILTON

His Grace Archbishop Harold Sexton is likely to think twice before he comes to St. Mary's Church in Fulford, to take a service again. Something always happens to upset the solemn dignity of the service. And always it is a baby—either a baby mouse or a human infant.

This time it was the lovely little nine-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John French of Victoria.

The Archbishop was holding a baptismal service for the baby during the regular service—and the cooling baby loved every minute of it. She chimed in and agreed with the remarks and prayers of the Archbishop; she whooped with gladness during the singing of the hymns and when the Archbishop finally took her in his arms to christen her, she gazed with wide-eyed wonder as he dipped his hand into the cool water in the font.

JUST FINE

His Grace splashed water generously on the small head, and named her Kim Elizabeth. And Kim thought that was just fine. She indicated she would appreciate some more of the cooling water. It was a warm afternoon and Kim wore an ancient family christening robe that boasted nearly a hundred years of family christenings and Kim didn't think too much of the gown, as a gown. She kicked and finally decided that heaven helps those who help themselves and she reached for the font and the nice cool water, and there she clung, her little hands firmly gripping the sturdy oak font.

The baby wouldn't let go and His Grace couldn't let go, but before the interested congregation could figure out who would win the tussle, the Bishop or the baby, Grandma French rushed to the rescue and His Grace was able to pronounce the Benediction in peace.

A GURGLE

A little later, there was a gurgle at the font—Kim had managed to drink of the holy water!

After the service, Mrs. French, Sr., asked His Grace if he remembered his last year's confirmation service and the baby mouse that dropped in uninvited.

"I will never forget that mouse!" said Archbishop Sexton. We do not think he is likely to forget the wee baby Kim either, or St. Mary's Church at Fulford.

Sudden Death Of A. S. Huntingford In Vancouver

Salt Spring Island friends of A. S. Huntingford, who resided for some years on Beddis Road, were grieved to hear of his sudden death in Vancouver on August 13.

Mr. and Mrs. Huntingford, residents of Victoria in recent years, were honored by their family and friends at a reception in Vancouver on August 10, to mark their golden wedding anniversary.

Friends from Salt Spring who attended the party, found Mr. Huntingford enjoying good health and were shocked at the news of his passing.

Funeral services were held August 15 in St. John the Divine Church, Victoria, with Rev. Canon George Biddle officiating. Interment followed in Royal Oak Burial Park, with McCall Bros. Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

Very few people actually own balloons these days. Pity. Such a nice, leisurely way to travel if you're not too busy about schedules and things. Full of surprises, too. You'll never know whether you're going to step out of your air-conditioned basket onto the fields of France, the Indian Ocean, or the top of Mount Everest. Makes packing a little difficult, perhaps, but think of the fun you can have dropping sandbags on your friends. On the other hand... if you are in a hurry, and do care where you go in B.C., then naturally you'll fly B.C. Airlines. P.S. We traded all our balloons in, but we've got some dandy little sandbags.

POTPOURRI

FLOATING CLOUD IN WORLD OF FUTURE IMPRESSES VISITOR AT SEATTLE FAIR

By ROSALIE HEYWOOD

There is a little train that will take you around the World Fair grounds in Seattle for a nominal sum. There are also a rickshaw-type car and a small motorized taxi. This is a good idea and if one is observant—which I am not—you can study the little map given to you upon entering the fair grounds and pick out the places you want to visit. But observant or not, it gives one a chance to relax and rest your feet.

We were told by an official that it really takes three days to see everything and the best plan is to pick the places with the larger line-ups for each morning, leaving the smaller exhibits for later in the day. We took two days and though we covered a lot of territory there were quite a few exhibits we missed. However, we did take in the important ones and these I will describe as best as possible.

First we went to the Theme exhibit in the Washington State Coliseum. The building itself would take up a massive four-city block square. Inside is what appears to be a floating cloud which consists of 3,600 cubes, each cube framed in metal and four feet square. Gathered into clusters, the exterior has a mirror-like surface. The lighting equipment is mounted inside the cubes and beamed through tiny openings in their walls, resulting in a constantly shifting panorama of color.

A special elevator looking like a big glass bubble and called the "bubblelator" lifted us to the level of the floating cube environment. LIKE MOVIES

Inside, the cubes have been treated with special materials so that the surface is suited to receiving projected images like a movie screen. Here are flashed still and motion pictures with voices explaining what is being seen.

By the time we had made the 24-minute trip through the cloud we had an idea of what it may be like to eat, sleep, travel, work, play and be educated in the world of the next century. "Century 21, The World of Tomorrow", it is called, and as we finally made our way down the ramp to ground level we found it difficult to bring ourselves back to the world of today.

The Science building is, without question, the largest of the exhibits. Here we were first ushered into an expansive area where we sat on a thick carpet and watched a film story on seven screens at one time. A voice narrated the explanation and we were shown how the structure of science is built at the meeting place of philosopher and workman.

Area II showed a volcano erupting; the flash of lightning, ocean waves, the turn of the seasons; the dramatic natural events which first aroused man's curiosity.

On the way to Area III there were many science facts to be observed, too numerous to mention here.

In the Spacearium we were on an imaginary space platform travelling with incredible speed outward from the dwindling earth. Soon we were beyond all horizons and the sky became space. We were astronauts enveloped in a motion picture surrounding us on all sides and above and we were going on a 12-minute space trip. To describe it further would be useless; one has to experience it to get the true feeling, the thrill that comes with this magnificent show.

The rest of the Science building holds many wonders and truths of science; almost more than the mind can hold at one time.

JAPANESE EXHIBITS

Two youthful Tokyo architects: Hudeki Shimizu and Kazuaki Matsushita, both in their early twenties are responsible for the beautiful fountain with its pattern of sculptured water playing in different forms.

To keep within the World's Fair "space age" concept, the water rises from a "bowl" 100 feet across, a ceramic circle with a glittering white-chip surface, which rests on a large granite plaza of varying levels. The plaza is extremely simple; the water designs reaching heights up to 100 feet, are complex. At night colored lighting is co-ordinated with the changing water patterns. We viewed it by day so regretfully missed this, but nevertheless enjoyed what we saw. There is also the park-like surroundings with granite blocks of all sizes which we climbed on, over, or sat on. It was here I enjoyed my Tampura on a skewer which I finally did purchase as I had promised myself I would.

The tampura was made of crisp celery at the top, then an onion and at the bottom—a huge prawn. All fastened to the skewer, dipped in batter, deep fried, then dipped in the sauce. Mmmm!

THERE TO STAY

The Space Needle. I regret to say, we passed up so I can only relate what I have heard. For some it "made the fair". Others, like myself didn't relish the idea of the swift ascent (the 43-second ride is made at the speed of 800 feet per minute). But we took moving pictures of the high-speed capsule-shaped elevators as they whisked their 30 passengers to the top; and sometimes I think we missed something by not trying it out. However I hear that the Space Needle is there to stay so perhaps there will be another chance. As it was, time was fleeting and there was still one exhibit in particular we wanted to see.

We headed for the Ford exhibit and were taken on another space trip, this time in a huge "space ship" with comfortable seats, a stewardess and a viewing hatch; everything as it might be in Century 21. We were shown planets and satellites and told each by name. We were given a thrill when the viewing hatch had to be closed as our "ship" ran into a barrage of meteors. Everything was made to seem realistic so we could imagine we were travelling through space in the next century.

I have been asked if I found a trip to the fair expensive. Well, a lot depends on your circumstances. To begin with there are travelling expenses, the monorail and the entrance fee to the fair grounds. In my estimation these are the costs that mount up. Once inside the grounds it is up to the individual. All the large, worthwhile exhibits are free of charge. Food, I found, was no more expensive than you will find at any other fair. If you buy a full meal you pay for a full meal as you would at any restaurant.

On our second day we ate at one of the stalls behind the stadium. The younger boy and I each had a half of a barbecued chicken on a stick for a very reasonable sum. It was thoroughly cooked and deliciously seasoned and a meal in itself. Hubby and the older boy chose different items: one simple and reasonable in price, the other more exotic and more expensive but not out of proportion.

Then there is always the gay-way and the shows to spend money on for those who wish.

A word of advice: Do have your money changed into American currency at a bank, if possible even before leaving Canada. It saves a lot of trouble for vendors at the fair who do not want to be bothered, so will charge you dearly on the exchange. If this little chore is carried out it will spare a lot of unpleasantness and hard feelings.

So if you are off to the fair, enjoy yourself. Dress comfortably, see all you can and absorb as much of the atmosphere as possible. It is an experience not to be forgotten!

TWO READINGS

Playing Fields Protection By-law was given first and second readings by Central Saanich council at its meeting Tuesday evening. The measure prohibits the presence of horses within the limits of playing fields or parks in the municipality, the maximum penalty for infringement of the by-law being $25 plus costs.

Journey Via Tokyo Brings High Temperatures And High Speeds

By MADELEINE TILL
I awoke feeling stifled — not a breath of air came through the windows—looked at my watch—it was 6 a.m., felt under the mattress—my watch and tickets were safe. I was not born in the Orient for nothing.
To sleep with windows wide open is an invitation to theft.
To try and cool off, I sat on a balcony outside the room facing a lawn planted on the restaurant roof. What the temperature was I could not guess, a hazy, grey sky portended another hot day.

The trees along the street wall of the courtyard shut out the city, but I could feel the mighty heart of Tokyo pulsating gently. Swallows circled overhead; I heard the universal house-sparrow chirping somewhere and cocks began crowing. Presently an alarm clock tinkled inside, people started to move about. Gradually the city came to life; the hush became a murmur and then a roar.

CURIOUS RATE

The Japanese people live at a furious tempo, but they make time to contemplate beauty in their homes and in their gardens.

The meanest house has a strip of green, a carefully-pruned tree or two and a few flowers to separate it from its neighbor.

The garden round International House looked as if it had been there from the year dot—but it was all man-made. Trees and shrubs were planted along an artificial slope to hide the city. Teruko, Mamie and I had coffee downstairs on a veranda facing the lily pool with its overhanging rocks. Stone-paved paths strayed through borders of shrubs, above which clumps of large, cream lilies with flerce, spotted hearts and orange stamens raised their heads.

One path led to a seat with a huge stone lantern beside it, another ran along the edge of a tiny stream, cool and shady from the trees above. Ferns and water plants grew along its banks. Two picturesque garden women appeared with cloths around their heads, carrying rakes. Mamie followed them, camera in hand, through a tunnel and cornered them on the edge of the garden, from where we saw the city spread before us. The women were bashful, but a few words from Teruko persuaded them to pose for a picture.

TO THE GINZA

Later, the three of us descended into the maelstrom of the Ginza, the 5th Avenue of Tokyo, along the human tide flowing through the streets, the arcades, and the department stores—became part of the human wall, several bodies deep, waiting to cross streets which take six or eight lines of cars.

I would hate to drive in Tokyo, scene of a stupendous motorized ballet performed at dizzy speeds by buses, taxis, trucks and scooters.

Although the Japanese execute the Dance of Life with energetic and complicated rhythms, they don't seem to get in each other's way. They know the rules, the most important being that they must practice courtesy if they would live happily in close proximity with their fellows.

The driving force behind their activity seems to be a desire to catch up with the rest of the world, and even to surpass it with their hotels, highways and theatres, with their factories springing up all over the countryside. The whole of Japan is literally, electrified from palace to hotel.

Perhaps they try too hard to show that they are like the West, and in doing so have lost some of their identity. I saw only two or three women wearing the kimono. Men dress in Western style, wear well-cut suits, or shirts hanging over jeans.

I might have been in the town of Anyplace in Europe or America seeing women dolled-up in gaily-colored skirts and blouses, modern hair-styles, pin heels and tall hats.

I was told that many of them have an operation on the eyes to destroy their Japanese appearance. Those staple foods of America, hot dogs, steaks, and ice cream, can be ordered everywhere. A group of husky young men tickled the largest, most insoucious-looking sundaes I had ever seen.

We spent an hour or so walking through the arcades and stores. It took all my will-power not to go on a buying spree and to remind myself that this was only my first day in Japan. I wanted a camera and a pair of binoculars and, very badly, a heavy bronze lantern. The heat was terrific. At one spot girls handed out damp wash-cloths rolled in plastic, free to passers-by, advertising the manufacturers. Women must have envied the men, with no make-up to consider, as they gave their faces and hands a thorough going over. I know I did (envy the men!).

FIRST EXPERIENCE

Finally, we sat down at a low table in a crowded restaurant off one of the arcades and ordered a Japanese dish. It looked like a small parcel in a square of thin pancake tied with a strip of seaweed.

I'm sure this was Mamie's first experience with chopsticks, and although I had tried them before, my technique was far from perfect. The wretched things never stayed at the correct angle. However, with perseverance, we succeeded in getting outside a compact mass of rice mixed with sesame seed, soya sauce and shrimp, garnished with delicious slices of ginger pickled stained red with plum juice.

We walked with Mamie to the Imperial Hotel, designed by Frank Lloyd Wright, the only building to come through the 1923 earthquake. The sightseeing bus was waiting outside, filled with foreign tourists. The Japanese, like the inhabitants of other countries, seldom visit their historical sites; young people especially have no time for ancient shrines and temples.

After collecting my bags at the International House, Teruko put me on the train for Osaka in a first-class carriage upholstered in royal-blue velvet. The air-conditioner blew an icy blast down the back of my neck as I waved good-bye and watched her figure get smaller and smaller till I could see it no more.

MORE ABOUT CADET

Kingston. Only a couple of the boys had been there, so this proved to be a very interesting tour, especially as it was unscheduled.

DEPARTURE

The big day for leaving Canada finally arrived. This was Friday, July 20. Our first stop was New York. A United States Air Force C-54 flew us down there. This same aircraft had brought the 15 American exchange cadets to Canada the previous day.

We landed at Newark Airport in New Jersey, where a bus was waiting to take us directly to the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in downtown Manhattan. This hotel was to be our "home" for the next three days.

We were not the only cadets staying at the Waldorf. Altogether, there were 125 of us from 20 different countries. Many of the cadets were from South America, including Chile, El Salvador, Brazil and Peru. Turkey and Israel were also represented, the remainder of the cadets coming from Europe.

Most of us were on the 11th floor of the hotel, with three to a room. My window overlooked Park Avenue and its endless stream of taxi-cabs. I should really call it a suite because it consisted of a main bed-sitting room with writing desk, T.V., and three or four chairs, a smaller room with two more chairs and another writing desk, and a huge marble bathroom. The suite was worth $18 per day.

NO ENGAGEMENTS

There were no official engagements for our first evening in New York. But two girls, both members of the Civil Air Patrol, consented to act as unofficial guides. After supper in the Peacock Room at the Waldorf, these two girls took all 135 of us on a tour of Times Square and the Empire State Building. We left about 7:30 p.m. on this trip and walked until nearly midnight. But believe me, it was well worth it.

Times Square was a complete jumble of people, cars and flashing neon lights. It really made us feel that we were in the big city.

One thing disappointed me. Times Square is not a square at all, it is a triangle, and not a very big one at that. I think it is all the color and organized confusion which makes it so famous.

TALLEST BUILDING

From the triangular Square, we traipsed eight or 10 blocks to the tallest building in the world. After organizing ourselves somewhat, we were whisked up to the 86th floor. There we transferred to a second elevator which took us to the 94th or 96th floor. This floor has a balcony around it plus a souvenir shop and coffee shop. Although it was about 10:30 p.m. and very dark, I tried for some pictures of the myriad of lights over 1,000 feet below us.

Some of us then took another elevator to the 102nd floor, the top of the Empire State. All that remained over us were aircraft warning lights, T.V., and radio broadcasting antennas.

Our second day in New York started with breakfast at 7 a.m. At 8 a.m. we embarked and were driven to pier 83, where Circle Line sightseeing yachts are based. The rest of the morning was spent on a boat ride around Manhattan Island as guests of Pepsi-Cola International.

You don't get a true impression of the height of the Empire State Building because it has so many other skyscrapers surrounding it. True, it stood considerably higher than the rest, but it would have to be in some place like Victoria or even Sidney before you could fully appreciate all 1,472 feet of it.

RADIO CITY

At 2 o'clock that afternoon we were taken to Radio City Music Hall at Rockefeller Centre, where we were guests for a film and stage presentation. First, we saw the movie "That Touch of Mink," starring Cary Grant and Doris Day.

As the curtains closed at the end of the film, the Radio City Music Hall Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Raymond Paige, rose from the floor below and for half an hour played classical and popular music. The stage show then took over, with Dancé Romantique, Meet Me at the Fair, West Point at Graduation Time and Ladies' Day at West Point. To use a hackneyed phrase, "it was a fabulous show."

That evening we had the biggest and fanciest dance of our trip, a military ball in the Starlight Room of the Waldorf-Astoria. This was on the 27th floor. High-ranking military officials from each of the 20 countries were present at the ball, as well as lots of girls. Most of the girls were from New York, although some had come from New Jersey and Maryland.

BEAUTY ARRIVES

The dance was thrown into a turmoil when it was announced that Miss U.S.A. and Miss Universe were coming. They came alright, and one of the British cadets had the honor of doing the "Twist" with Miss Universe, Norma Nolan of Argentina. My encounter with these two girls came the following day at the United Nations.

The morning of Sunday, July 22, was free. Many of the cadets went to church services of their choice. In the afternoon, starting at 2:30 p.m., we visited the United Nations. As soon as we arrived on the U.N. grounds, we assembled in our respective countries. The American officers in charge of the party asked for one cadet from each country. As the Canadians were numbered from one to 15, we asked them to choose a number. They picked 13—my number.

HAS PROOF

The 20 of us were then formed up to await the arrival of Miss Universe and Miss U.S.A. When they arrived, 12 to 15 official photographers "shot" us with them for half an hour. A tour of the U.N. followed the picture-taking. For any skeptics, I have photographs and newspaper clippings to back up this story.

The New York night of our tour was capped that night with a dinner at one of the city's most famous restaurants, Leone's. We were guests of the proprietor, Lt. Col. Gene Leone, C.A.P., for this International Dinner-Party.

The dinner party lasted for over three hours. Course followed course. After we had been eating for approximately an hour the main course was served — one whole chicken each. I'll never be as full again as I was that night. After we had finished eating, we were presented with a medal commemorating John Glenn's three orbits of the earth. These were supplied by the Medal of the Month Club. What will they think of next?

GOD AND FREEDOM

The hotel was only about six blocks away so we walked back. On the way we saw something which I don't think you would ever find in staid old Victoria. A Negro was standing on the side of the street, holding the Stars and Stripes and sounding forth to a group of passers-by on God and freedom. We didn't get the full gist of his speech, but several hecklers were giving him a rough time. One of the 14,000 patrol New York's tangled streets, was standing close by to discourage any troublemakers.

When we had first arrived in New York, we were presented with a small flight bag from various airlines throughout the world. Mine was supplied by El Al Israel Airlines. The bags contained everything from tie pins to Alka Seltzer. There were navigational computers, courtesy of Esso products, Life Savers, chewing gum, Tums (for the tummy), pens, pencils, shoe polish and notebooks, to name just a few.

One of the best souvenirs among this conglomeration was a miniature replica of the "Key to International Understanding and Goodwill" presented by air-minded youth of 20 nations to John F. Kennedy, president of the United States, at the White House, Washington, D.C. in July, 1961. This "key" was supplied by the Yale and Towne Manufacturing Co., and could be used as a tie pin. We later saw the original key at the headquarters of the Civil Air Patrol on Ellington Air Force Base in Houston, Texas.

We left New York on Monday,

July 23. From here, each country was hosted by a different state for 10 days. The Canadians went to the second largest state in the Union, Texas.

Next week I will cover our stay in the land of the Lone Star.

B. C. Coast's New Telephone Highway

This vital communications system, extending from Alaska to the 49th parallel, was recently opened to provide the Pacific northwest coast with its most dramatic telephone "highway". Built jointly by B. C. Telephone Company and the Alaska Telephone Corporation, it can carry up to 240 simultaneous conversations. Its 100-million-watt radio beam, twice blasted up into the troposphere to be "scattered" downward to the next antenna, skips distances up to 200 miles without intermediate relay equipment — and at nearly the speed of light. From the northern tip of Vancouver Island southward is a new million-dollar microwave system, which carries the signals to the U.S.

The Alaska "scatterwave" represents a typical space-age solution to a tough communications problem, the kind of solution your Telephone Company is constantly pioneering.

All Set For Fair

—Labor Day

One of the biggest changes in routine is to be marked this year by the Saanich Fair. Tied to Labor Day since its inception in 1868, the fair has always been officially opened on Labor Day. This year the official opening will take place on Saturday, Sept. 1.

Despite the introduction of a second day for the fair several years ago, the official opening was retained for the Monday.

The fair has survived every phase of the district's economy and development for 94 years. Today's fair preparations would stagger the sponsors of the original fair in 1868. The classes cover almost every possible activity within a rural community. Ranging from farm produce and livestock to the kitchen and home workshop, they also include hobbies and handicrafts for participants in every age bracket.

The two-day fair will offer a record figure in prizes this year as well as a range of entertainments unequalled in earlier years.

TRADITIONAL

Spectators will follow the saddle horse events and Highland dancing which have become traditional with the fair. At the same time the livestock shows will be maintained with new and larger classes, while the midway, under the direction of Sidney Rotary Club, will be expanded.

Almost every community organization in the area of Saanich Peninsula makes a contribution to Saanich Fair. It is not only the oldest function on the Peninsula, it is also the most widespread.

Albert Doney, who has held the office of president of the sponsoring North and South Saanich Agricultural Society for a number of years, will be a proud man on Saturday Sept. 1, when the 94th annual exhibition here opens its gates.

NEAR MIRACLE FOR HOUSE WIFE HERE

Johanna A New Woman Facing A New Life And New Living

A new life has opened up for a Sidney housewife following a near-miraculous operation on her heart in January. Mrs. Johanna Cox, 2332 Brethour Ave., has spent most of her life as an ailing invalid, unable to exert herself or take part in the ordinary activities of life. Today she is on top of the world. What is routine and hum-drum to the rest of the world is new and novel to her.

Life now holds a deeper meaning for the Holland-born wife of Sidney veteran, L. H. Cox.

The operation last January has enabled Mrs. Cox to take an active part in what previously had been a dreary world for her. For the first time in her life she now does the family shopping, takes care of her home, visits with the neighbors, bakes and is even learning to swim.

Before the operation which opened up this new world to her, a slight exertion would bring a prompt shortness of breath.

"The doctors told me it would be about six months before I would begin to feel the difference," said Mrs. Cox, "but I felt much better before that time."

The wonderful world of new clothes also attracts her now.

"Before the operation I was usually lying down wearing a pair of slacks, but now that I am out more often I find that I need many new dresses," she said.

One of her greatest satisfactions is found in her ability to make a cup of coffee for her visiting neighbors. Previously, they would come over in the mornings, make themselves and Mrs. Cox a cup of coffee, and then do some dusting or sweeping for her before going home.

Swimming is an entirely new experience for her. Before her operation her hands and toes would turn blue when put in the water. She has not yet learned to swim but maintains that she is trying hard.

Mrs. Cox says she is still gaining strength, and is gradually able to walk farther and accomplish other feats which were once beyond her capabilities.

"It's a wonderful feeling to be able to take an active part in life," she says. "No one can fully appreciate what they take for granted until they have had an experience similar to mine."

MILKY WAY CLOSING DOWN

AUSTERITY PROGRAM FINAL BLOW TO LOCAL DAIRY AFTER LONG CARTON FIGHT

Saanich dairy has finally succumbed to governmental controls.

For several years Milky Way Dairy Ltd. fought back at the provincial government when legislation sought to put the operation out of business. The small operation successfully bucked the provincial department of agriculture in face of a series of regulations and prosecutions which were described as persecutions.

Last week a second government came into the picture and the dairy which had survived blow after blow from one government took the count from the second.

Describing the closure as "the end of a dream," Henry Robinson, prominent Saanich farmer, attributed the collapse of his project to the earlier fight waged with the provincial government.

Establishing a dairy several years ago, a group of local farmers sought to market a milk of higher quality than standard and packaged in cartons by means of a small machine designed for the small user in the United States.

Shortly after its appearance the carton was condemned by the former minister of agriculture, N. P. Stacey, on the grounds that it contained an American half-gallon and not a standard Canadian measure. The department then introduced legislation requiring milk to be cartoned in multiples of the Canadian quart.

Public indignation, coupled with the dairy's refusal to be intimidated, resisted the new regulations and the dairy was permitted to sell milk in the disputed carton.

Later, the department of agriculture brought a number of actions against the dairy for various technicalities, which were climaxed when the dairy refused the inspector admittance.

Once again public indignation was aroused and the department turned the pressure off.

The dairy continued to operate, but the original plans of its sponsors were doomed.

One Hit, Two Misses And One Error As They Seek Change

Score was one hit, two misses and one error on Monday evening when trustees of Saanich School District were asked to approve attendance of pupils at schools outside their residential areas.

Hit was made by parents whose child was recommended for attendance at a distant school on medical advice. Two misses were both parents residing in Greater Victoria School District who sought attendance privileges at Royal Oak. In one case the parents volunteered to pay any costs involved, while in the second case the costs were declined.

Trustees decided that even if fees were paid it was a poor policy in view of the fact that the board of the Greater Victoria School District is far from co-operative in such instances.

Parents of a child who failed a

HAS SIDNEY BEEN MOVED? ASKS VISITOR

Has Sidney moved? A visitor from Duncan asked the question last week when he found that a signpost on the Patricia Bay Highway had changed.

On regular trips to North Saanich he had been advised that Sidney lay 7½ miles north of a point of the highway, he states. The same sign now tells him he is six miles away.

Charge Follows Rear-end Crash

Charges will be laid against Kenneth Fielding, 10070 Fifth St., following an accident last Friday at the intersection of Fifth St. and Beacon Ave., it was learned at Sidney Detachment R.C.M.P. headquarters.

While stationary at a stop sign the car of Mrs. H. M. Spooner, 10043 Third St., was hit in the rear by the car driven by Fielding, and considerable damage resulted.

Lumbia, Mr. Robinson has an alternative proposal. "We should put it in a park and dedicate it to the Social Credit government," he suggested.

He was equally bitter towards the Dominion government, whose austerity program was the final straw on the dairy's back.

"It is a blow to small businesses all over the country," he noted. "They are being hit all the time, but governments don't care about the small operator."

SUBSTANTIAL EXPRESSION OF GRATITUDE

Congratulatory letter to Saanich council from the committee of the Oddfellows, and signed by Chairman F. W. Gower, showed practical appreciation of the amenities of Centennial park by enclosure of a cheque for $25 as a donation.

At last week's council meeting Reeve R. G. Lee acknowledged the gift with thanks, and a motion was passed setting aside the money for the use of the parks committee.

the Drama of DRUGS

By JIM BRIGHAM.

In spite of improved techniques in the treatment of disease and the constant improvement of pharmaceutical products, doctors are more in demand today than ever before. What is the reason for this? Are more people getting sick these days; are we getting physically soft? The reasons are several. First, the ratio of doctors to the rest of the population is constantly dropping. Another reason is that people in cities seek medical care more often than those in rural areas; and more and more folks are moving to the larger population centres. The final reason for this physician shortage . . . according to the United States Public Health Service . . . is the growth of medical insurance programs. These have made medical attention possible for people who previously couldn't afford adequate protection . . .
